POSTAL STATIONS.

THEIR NEED IN THE DISTRICT. Interview With the Superintendent of the Free De livery Division of the Post-Office Department-Cities Which Have Stations-A Comparison.

Following up the subject of the estabshment of post-office stations in the District to enable our citizens to have additional postal facilities, so that a man won't have to go clear to the post-office when he wants to buy a postage-stamp, and won't have an excuse to go into a drug store, and after procuring his stamp sample the soda with a "spike," a representative of THE REPUBLI-CAN dropped into the office of Mr. Revere W. Gurley, the superintendent of the free delivery branch of the Post-Office Department, and proceeded to apply his inquisitorial corkscrew to that amiable gentleman. Mr. Gurley has been connected with this branch of the Department ever since there was a free delivery of the mails, and his quiet, unostentatious manner of dispatching business, his thorough knowledge of every detail, and his excellent judgment have made him one of the most valuable officers in the Department. "Mr. Gurley," said he, after he had comfortably seated himself and looked wonderingly round the room, thinking that there were altogether too many crowded together, and that the appointment clerk should have a room all by himself, as is the case in most other Departments, "you probably read an interview with Postmaster Ainger in THE REPUBLICAN a day or two ago, did you not?"

"Yes, sir," responded Mr. Gurley. "Well," said the news-seeker, "what do you think of the establishment of stations in this District?" "I think, sir, it would be a good thing, and it is a matter of which I have thought for some time, and over a year ago I spoke of it. You see, we have what are called stations and substations, Now, from Mr. Ainger's remarks, I infer he is in favor of establishing stations. At these there is a regular distribution, and the services of clerks and other employees are required. Where, however, we can send the carriers by rail we prefer that they should all go from one point-the post-office." "In this city," interjected the quill-driver, as he topped to put a point on his pencil, "there are abundant horse-car facilities to reach almost every

"Yes," resumed Mr. Gurley, "and on that account it is probable that substations would answer every purpose. "Substations are not so expensive, are they?"

asked the interlocutor. "Not by any means. In Cincinnati some of them do not cost more than $200 per year, while I see all hearers. that Mr. Ainger's estimate for the stations is about $2,900 for each station. Two-thirds of that would of course be for clerk-hire."

"What steps are necessary in order to secure the establishment of stations or substations in the Dis- | examination this morning. trict? Must it be by petition of the citizens interested, or an application from the postmaster?" asked the scribe.

"The application of the postmaster is sufficient, When such an application is made we usually send an agent to examine into the matter and estimate the cost, and then, if we have the funds, the Postmaster-General gives the order, and the stations, or substations, are established." Thanking Mr. Gurley for his information, THE

Pay for Navy-Yard Employees.

The commission appointed by Commodore Pattison, commandant of the navy-yard, to ascertain the rate of pay paid to the mechanics and laborers employed in the outside establishments in the vicinity of the yard have performed that duty, and recommend that the pay paid to mechanics and laborers in the navy-yard remain the same as that paid last quarter.

ALEXANDRIA AFFAIRS.

Sergeant David H. Jones, of Mount Jackson, Va., won the medal in the prize drill yesterday of the cadet corps of St. John's Academy. took place in St. Paul's Church on Thursday night at eight o'clock, Rev. George H. Norton, D. D., rector of the church, officiating, in the presence of a large assemblage. It is now understood that upon the opening of the iron works here and, in conjunction therewith, the managers of the Marine Railway Company contemplate and are making arrange-dents to engage on an extensive scale in the building of freight cars, the demand for which is to great and constantly increasing.

Yesterday Henry Dudley, a colored botblack, was given thirty-nine lashes for stealing shoes from Mr. Paff, and in the afternoon Mary Jane Henderson, a colored girl, was whipped for stealing a gold watch from Mrs. M. M. Smith, who resides on Seminary Hill, a short distance from this city. The neighborhood of the station-house was made lively by the screams of these two negroes. At the ordination services in the chapel of the Theological Seminary yesterday the following were ordained priests: Mercer P. Logan, Salem, Va.; D. Watson Winn, Richmond, Va.; William M. Clark, North Carolina: Arthur S. Lloyd, of Alexandria, Va.; Edward L. Goodwin, Wytheville, Va. The following were ordained deacons: W. H. ARMY FORAGE, Important Becision By the Secretary of War-The Officers to be Benefited. At the last session of Congress an important clause was inserted in the army appropriation bill relative to the removal of the discrimination between officers east and west of the Mississipp River as to forage. The law, as it existed, allowed forage only to officers west of the Mississippi. The new law reads as follows: Provided, That there shall be no discrimination in the issue of forage against officers serving east of the Mississippi River, provided they are required by law to be mounted, and actually keep and own their own horses.

There was some doubt as the effect of this clause, whether it superseded the old law, which limited the issue of forage "only to officers when on duty in the field," The question was brought to the attention of the Secretary of War, and he has decided that the new clause supersedes the old, and not only removes the discrimination between officers east and west of the Mississippi, but also does away with the restrictions of the former enactment; so that the Secretary is not compelled to designate the posts where forage can be granted, nor are the officers in receipt of forage compelled to be on active duty in the field. The forage, however, must be "in kind," as the system of commutation has been done away with. This decision will be a very welcome one to the army officers living East, as the item of forage is quite a large one in their personal expenses. It will enable a large number that have not heretofore been able to keep horses to set up their own equipages. The officers allowed to keep horses are specified by law, and are as follows: The General, five horses; Lieufenant-General, four horses; major-general, three horses; brigadiergeneral, three horses; colonel, two horses; lieutenant-colonel, two horses; major, two horses; captain (mounted), two horses; lieutenant (mounted) two horses; adjutant, two horses; regimental quartermaster, two horses. The officers living in this city that come under the provisions of this law constitute quite a large number. Very many of them already keep horses, but the large majority do not. The following are the officers on duty here entitled to keep horses and receive forage. General Sherman, Colonel Dodge, General Tidball, Colonel Morrow, Colonel Tourtellotte, Colonel Bacon, General Poe, Colonel Barr, General Drum General McKeever, General Ruggles, Major Nickerson, Colonel Corbin, General Sacket, General Baird, General Meigs, General Holabird, Colonel Chandler, Colonel Moore, General Card, General Macfeeley, General Haines, Colonel Gilman, Major Bell, General Barnes, General Crane, Colonel Woodward, Colonel Billings, Colonel Baxter, Colonel Norris, General Brown, Colonel McClure, Colonel Febiger, Colonel Casey, Major Smith, Major Candee, Major Wright, Major Parke, Major Elliott, Colonel Farquhar, Colonel Rockwell, General Benet, Colonel Whittemore, General Swaine, Colonel Winthrop, Colonel Curtis, Colonel Goodfellow, and General Hazen. The number of horses to which each of these officers is entitled is given above. As the same number are allowed to a major and brigadier-general and a colonel and a lieutenant-colonel, these titles are not specified. The law goes into effect at once; and now that what has been regarded as an unjust discrimination between officers east and west of the Mississippi River is removed, there will be a greater number of horses and far more horseriding in army circles. The same privilege is of course extended to officers at the different stations

to the Post-Office Department for the fiscal year | Collector Highy's Trouble-His Bond

Said to Be Perfectly Good. Upon inquiry at the Bureau of Internal Revenue yesterday with regard to the defalcation in the office of Collector Higby, of the California distransferred to Chancellor Hartzell before business hours on July 1. Commissioner Raum says that Collector Higby's bond is perfectly solid, and that he will be required to make good any deficiencies of his subordinates before surrendering the office The defalcation of Deputy Collector Kelly, who has absconded, it is thought, will reach about $2,000 There have been several attempts made by the internal revenue office during the past two years to have Collector Higby removed, owing to his incapacity to transact the business properly. The latter fact Commissioner Raum explains as being due to the weight of years and failing health. Several of Mr. Higby's subordinates have from time to time taken advantage of his condition and misappropriated Government funds. Some of these officers have heretofore been removed and the losses made good. Commissioner Raum anticipates perfect discipline and efficiency in the lice after the newly-appointed collector has asumed control. The defalcation of Hebbard, it is said, was discovered some two months ago, and he is now under indictment. The fraudulent transactions were brought to light by William Somerville, internal revenue agent of Illinois, who has been on special duty in the California district for several months.
